* Denotes situations where it was difficult to estimate real value of financial assistance, but a determination was made that the value of financial assistance did exceed the $50,000 threshold.

Note:

Financial assistance as defined by Chapter 17-1400 of the Philadelphia Code include "any grant, loan, tax incentive, bond financing subsidy for land purchase or otherwise, or other form of assistance that is realized by or approved to a Person in the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more through the authority or approval of the City..." Types of assistance may include, but are not limited to, "Tax Increment Financing (TIF) aid, industrial development bonds, use of the power of eminent domain, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) aid or loans, airport revenue bonds, and Enterprise Zone or similar economic development zone designations..."

The instances of financial assistance described above were made during the reportable quarter. The amounts provided above include, in the cases of loans or bonds, the total amount of the loan or bond, and the associated financial assistance derived from the deal over $50,000. These calculations are based upon the Net Present Value of the loan or bond over the life of the deal as it compares to what the recipient would have received in the market for the same deal. In the case of leases, the financial assistance represent a comparison between the fair market value of a property and the cost of the lease the entity received from the City.

* Bonds were issued by the Philadelphia Industrial Development Corporation.

Note:

Financial assistance as defined by Chapter 17-1400 of the Philadelphia Code include "any grant, loan, tax incentive, bond financing subsidy for land purchase or otherwise, or other form of assistance that is realized by or approved to a Person in the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more through the authority or approval of the City..." Types of assistance may include, but are not limited to, "Tax Increment Financing (TIF) aid, industrial development bonds, use of the power of eminent domain, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) aid or loans, airport revenue bonds, and Enterprise Zone or similar economic development zone designations..."

The instances of financial assistance described above were made during the reportable quarter. The amounts provided above include, in the cases of loans or bonds, the total amount of the loan or bond, and the associated financial assistance derived from the deal. These calculations are based upon the Net Present Value of the loan or bond over the life of the deal as it compares to what the recipient would have received in the market for the same deal. In the case of leases, the financial assistance represent a comparison between the fair market value of a property and the cost of the lease the entity received from the City.

* Denotes situations where it was difficult to estimate real value of financial assistance, but a determination was made that the value of financial assistance did exceed the $50,000 threshold.

Note:

Financial assistance as defined by Chapter 17-1400 of the Philadelphia Code include "any grant, loan, tax incentive, bond financing subsidy for land purchase or otherwise, or other form of assistance that is realized by or approved to a Person in the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more through the authority or approval of the City..." Types of assistance may include, but are not limited to, "Tax Increment Financing (TIF) aid, industrial development bonds, use of the power of eminent domain, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) aid or loans, airport revenue bonds, and Enterprise Zone or similar economic development zone designations..."

The instances of financial assistance described above were made during the reportable quarter. The amounts provided above include, in the cases of loans or bonds, the total amount of the loan or bond, and the associated financial assistance derived from the deal over $50,000. These calculations are based upon the Net Present Value of the loan or bond over the life of the deal as it compares to what the recipient would have received in the market for the same deal. In the case of leases, the financial assistance represent a comparison between the fair market value of a property and the cost of the lease the entity received from the City.

* Starting in FY10 (July 1, 2009), the Capital Program Office merged with the Department of Public Property. Starting with the 1/31/10 Quarterly Report, all contracts and amendments that had been managed by, and listed under, the Capital Program Office will now appear under the Department of Public Property.

** Payment information for these contracts had not been reported in prior quarterly reports and, as such, all payments (for the initial term and subsequent amendments) had to be included and are reported in their entirety

Note:

Financial assistance as defined by Chapter 17-1400 of the Philadelphia Code includes "any grant, loan, tax incentive, bond financing subsidy for land purchase or otherwise, or other form of assistance that is realized by or approved to a Person in the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more through the authority or approval of the City..." Types of assistance may include, but are not limited to, "Tax Increment Financing (TIF) aid, industrial development bonds, use of the power of eminent domain, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) aid or loans, airport revenue bonds, and Enterprise Zone or similar economic development zone designations..."

The instances of financial assistance described above were made during the reportable quarter. The amounts provided above include, in the cases of loans or bonds, the total amount of the loan or bond, and the associated financial assistance derived from the deal over $50,000. These calculations are based upon the Net Present Value of the loan or bond over the life of the deal as it compares to what the recipient would have received in the market for the same deal. In the case of leases, the financial assistance represent a comparison between the fair market value of a property and the cost of the lease the entity received from the City. For all housing development assistance listed, the total amount of the deal represents the total amount of the housing development project with the amount of the financial assistance representing the housing developer fees paid to those organizations involved in the development project.

Note:

Financial assistance as defined by Chapter 17-1400 of the Philadelphia Code includes "any grant, loan, tax incentive, bond financing subsidy for land purchase or otherwise, or other form of assistance that is realized by or approved to a Person in the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more through the authority or approval of the City..." Types of assistance may include, but are not limited to, "Tax Increment Financing (TIF) aid, industrial development bonds, use of the power of eminent domain, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) aid or loans, airport revenue bonds, and Enterprise Zone or similar economic development zone designations..."

The instances of financial assistance described above were made during the reportable quarter. The amounts provided above include, in the cases of loans or bonds, the total amount of the loan or bond, and the associated financial assistance derived from the deal over $50,000. These calculations are based upon the Net Present Value of the loan or bond over the life of the deal as it compares to what the recipient would have received in the market for the same deal. In the case of leases, the financial assistance represent a comparison between the fair market value of a property and the cost of the lease the entity received from the City. For all housing development assistance listed, the total amount of the deal represents the total amount of the housing development project with the amount of the financial assistance representing the housing developer fees paid to those organizations involved in the development project.

Note:

Financial assistance as defined by Chapter 17-1400 of the Philadelphia Code includes "any grant, loan, tax incentive, bond financing subsidy for land purchase or otherwise, or other form of assistance that is realized by or approved to a Person in the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more through the authority or approval of the City..." Types of assistance may include, but are not limited to, "Tax Increment Financing (TIF) aid, industrial development bonds, use of the power of eminent domain, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) aid or loans, airport revenue bonds, and Enterprise Zone or similar economic development zone designations..."

The instances of financial assistance described above were made during the reportable quarter. The amounts provided above include, in the cases of loans or bonds, the total amount of the loan or bond, and the associated financial assistance derived from the deal over $50,000. These calculations are based upon the Net Present Value of the loan or bond over the life of the deal as it compares to what the recipient would have received in the market for the same deal. In the case of leases, the financial assistance represent a comparison between the fair market value of a property and the cost of the lease the entity received from the City. For all housing development assistance listed, the total amount of the deal represents the total amount of the housing development project with the amount of the financial assistance representing the housing developer fees paid to those organizations involved in the development project.

Note:

Financial assistance as defined by Chapter 17-1400 of the Philadelphia Code includes "any grant, loan, tax incentive, bond financing subsidy for land purchase or otherwise, or other form of assistance that is realized by or approved to a Person in the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more through the authority or approval of the City..." Types of assistance may include, but are not limited to, "Tax Increment Financing (TIF) aid, industrial development bonds, use of the power of eminent domain, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) aid or loans, airport revenue bonds, and Enterprise Zone or similar economic development zone designations..."

The instances of financial assistance described above were made during the reportable quarter. The amounts provided above include, in the cases of loans or bonds, the total amount of the loan or bond, and the associated financial assistance derived from the deal over $50,000. These calculations are based upon the Net Present Value of the loan or bond over the life of the deal as it compares to what the recipient would have received in the market for the same deal. In the case of leases, the financial assistance represent a comparison between the fair market value of a property and the cost of the lease the entity received from the City. For all housing development assistance listed, the total amount of the deal represents the total amount of the housing development project with the amount of the financial assistance representing the housing developer fees paid to those organizations involved in the development project.

Financial assistance amounts denoted as "Greater than $50,000" reflect situations where it was difficult to estimate the real value of financial assistance but a determination was made that the value of financial assistance did exceed the $50,000 threshold.

* These instances of financial assistance were determined to meet the criteria of financial assistance after the issuance of the quarterly report for the time period in which the assistance was originally disbursed and, as such, are being reported as part of this quarterly report.

Note:

Financial assistance as defined by Chapter 17-1400 of the Philadelphia Code includes "any grant, loan, tax incentive, bond financing subsidy for land purchase or otherwise, or other form of assistance that is realized by or approved to a Person in the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more through the authority or approval of the City..." Types of assistance may include, but are not limited to, "Tax Increment Financing (TIF) aid, industrial development bonds, use of the power of eminent domain, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) aid or loans, airport revenue bonds, and Enterprise Zone or similar economic development zone designations..."

The instances of financial assistance described above were made during the reportable quarter. The amounts provided above include, in the cases of loans or bonds, the total amount of the loan or bond, and the associated financial assistance derived from the deal over $50,000. These calculations are based upon the Net Present Value of the loan or bond over the life of the deal as it compares to what the recipient would have received in the market for the same deal. In the case of leases, the financial assistance represent a comparison between the fair market value of a property and the cost of the lease the entity received from the City. For all housing development assistance listed, the total amount of the deal represents the total amount of the housing development project with the amount of the financial assistance representing the housing developer fees paid to those organizations involved in the development project.

Financial assistance amounts denoted as "Greater than $50,000" reflect situations where it was difficult to estimate the real value of financial assistance but a determination was made that the value of financial assistance did exceed the $50,000 threshold.

Office of Housing and Community Development	Housing Development	WPRE II, LLC	$8,602,509	$978,000

Note:

Financial assistance as defined by Chapter 17-1400 of the Philadelphia Code includes "any grant, loan, tax incentive, bond financing subsidy for land purchase or otherwise, or other form of assistance that is realized by or approved to a Person in the amount of fifty thousand dollars ($50,000) or more through the authority or approval of the City..." Types of assistance may include, but are not limited to, "Tax Increment Financing (TIF) aid, industrial development bonds, use of the power of eminent domain, Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) aid or loans, airport revenue bonds, and Enterprise Zone or similar economic development zone designations..."

The instances of financial assistance described above were made during the reportable quarter. The amounts provided above include, in the cases of loans or bonds, the total amount of the loan or bond, and the associated financial assistance derived from the deal over $50,000. These calculations are based upon the Net Present Value of the loan or bond over the life of the deal as it compares to what the recipient would have received in the market for the same deal. In the case of leases, the financial assistance represent a comparison between the fair market value of a property and the cost of the lease the entity received from the City. For all housing development assistance listed, the total amount of the deal represents the total amount of the housing development project with the amount of the financial assistance representing the housing developer fees paid to those organizations involved in the development project.

Financial assistance amounts denoted as "Greater than $50,000" reflect situations where it was difficult to estimate the real value of financial assistance but a determination was made that the value of financial assistance did exceed the $50,000 threshold.
